was a short term hurt but the long term real injury is that the dreams I had of being a champion in this sport are gone. I didn't get a chance to say goodbye but I'm sure it was in a way I will never forget. What got to me was I was knocked off in the last 200m of a 1 hour 10m race. I hadn't had a go for a bit. And I just think about it: 10 minutes earlier I was in the 200m final, winning the heat, winning a medal, and thinking "this is my day".

And then all of a sudden it was all over. That hurts in a way that you can't explain. That dream is over. I was there with my wife, my dad, my brother, a number of friends and my manager. So it wasn't a total loss. I was with my mum in the stands at Bendigo and the last thing she said to me before I went on the track was, "you've got to be the fastest man in the country". I did the best I could and she was right - it was my day. I suppose it was one of those things where maybe if I had won or finished second or third, it would have been different. But I won. I was very happy. Higgins after crossing the line. Source: News Corp Australia The champion of the day was Xavier Drouin. We crossed the line a bit afterwards and he congratulated me.

But I just couldn't celebrate. I walked off, held back by my mum and dad. The guys from the team went over and we just stood around and chatted. I went to my hotel room and the manager came over. She said, "I am very sad, it's very sad. I'm just so sorry for you". And I just thought, "this is tough", because I was a bit down about it. Then I got home and tried to be positive. I was thinking, "what can you do
